Dearest Darling.

Hi Hon and good evening to my little Dove. How are you honey I haven't heard for a couple of days and have been thinking of you so much. Darling if you don't mind I'll tell you again that I Love you and very very much too. See Honey I'm going to be the happiest guy in the world when I get out and can settle down again with my Darling little wife and the children. I hope it is soon. I get so lonesome for you all but guess I'm no different than a lot of other guys. Boy there's very few who will stay in for another hitch once the war is over and I'm one of them. I'm heading straight for you hon.

Well I got off work this morning about 9 o'clock. It was rather cloudy and cool so I undressed and hit the sack and slept until 12 o'clock then went to dinner. After dinner went back to the hut and put some clothes to soak - straightened out my locker. Then I pressed a set of Blues and a set of whites. Washed out the clothes and hung them inside on the line as it looked a little like rain. Then went to supper at 5 o'clock and from there went to the movie. It was pretty good for a western called "Gentle Annie."

Then come over to the office and had a cup of coffee and read the paper.

It is now 9 o'clock so guess I'll go down and shave and make up my sack before lights go out. Wish I could feel my way around there in the dark at home. I'll bet anything I would find you - want to make a bet hon?

Nite Nite Sweetheart, sweet dreams and remember I Love you. I Love you. I Love you. Can you feel it hon?
