Firefly

Ryan George currently resides in Austin, Texas where he is active as an arranger and composer. His works, ranging from music for the stage to music for the football field, have been performed throughout the United States, Asia, and Europe.

George writes the following regarding his inspiration for Firefly:

I’m amazed at how children use their imagination to transform the ordinary and normal into the extraordinary and fantastic. Just about anything they come across can be used to spark their fantasies and usher their minds into unseen worlds. A stick on the ground becomes a wand with magical powers or a sword to fight off bad guys. A collection of rocks turns into buried treasure and a blanket stretched over two chairs becomes a cave to hide in. And things found in nature; birds, waterfalls, flowers, and even insects can take on mythic identities when viewed through the eyes of a child.

The idea for Firefly was born one night as I watched my 4-year old become smitten by a firefly that had wandered into our front yard. When I asked her what she thought of the “firefly” she looked at me with a puzzled look and said with a corrective tone, ‘Dad, that is not a firefly... that’s Tinkerbell, and she’s come to take me with her on an adventure!’

Firefly is dedicated to my daughters Sophia and Nyla, who ignite my imagination and bring awe and wonder into my life every day.

Selections from The Danserye (c.1551)

Arranger Patrick Dunnigan is Professor of music education and Associate Director of Bands in the College of Music at Florida State University. He teaches conducting, wind band literature and music education courses.

Dunnigan writes the following about the Selections from the Danserye:

The Danserye is a set of instrumental dances based on popular tunes of the mid 16th century, arranged by Susato and published in 1551 as Het derde musyk boecken. Specific instrumentation is not indicated, thus suggesting that the tunes were performed by whatever combination of winds and strings were available. Selections from the Danserye is a new setting for wind band consisting of dances fashioned into an extended “symphonic suite.”

The arrangement utilizes the full resources of the modern wind band featuring various sections in alternation with powerful tutti passages. While the wind parts remain faithful to the original material, the dances are energized with a healthy dose of contemporary percussion effects and acoustic guitar. This blend of sound generates a “new, but familiar” element thus making something very modern out of music that is over 450 years old.

Elegy for a Young American (1964)

Ronald Lo Presti is an American composer, born in Massachusetts. Lo Presti graduated from the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester in New York. Lo Presti wrote music for the Winfield public schools in Kansas under the auspices of the Ford Foundation, an international organization “for scientific, educational and charitable purposes, all for the public welfare.” Lo Presti received several grants from this prestigious organization.

Elegy for a Young American, an evocative and patriotic work, was written in dedication to President John F. Kennedy, who was infamously assassinated on November 22, 1963 in Dallas, Texas while campaigning for the upcoming 1964 election. President Kennedy spent most of his presidency in the Communist fight and was an advocate of America’s efforts to support human rights in other countries. The piece begins with a somber three-part clarinet melody, which, in moving from conflict to resolution, sets the mood for the entire piece. Following is a chorale-like passage in the brass, which Lo Presti describes as “reminiscent of an army remembrance march,” and toward the end is a fast-moving section representing “American pride and ideologies.” The piece finishes in a slow, somber mood, reminiscent of the clarinet’s at the onset of the piece, and the final tones of the chimes leave the audience with a sense of peace.

March from Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Carl Maria Von Weber

In general, the lack of contact in music between the producer and the consumer in our time is regrettable; a composer should only write when he knows for what purpose he is composing. The days of simply composing for oneself have perhaps now been lost forever.

-Paul Hindemith

Symphonic Metamorphosis was premiered by the New York Philharmonic on 20 January 1944, Artur Rodzinski conducting. It has since become one of Hindemith’s more popular and enduring works. It was inspired in part by Choreographer and Dancer Léonide Massine, who suggested to Hindemith that he compose a ballet based on Weber’s music. However, after watching one of Massine’s ballets and discovering that Massine intended to use sets and costumes designed by Salvador Dali (an artist whom Hindemith disliked), Hindemith decided to part ways with Massine, and the project was dropped. A few years later, Hindemith decided to salvage the music and write a set of variations, or 'metamorphosis,' instead.

The suite is in four movements:

I. Allegro – A confident and aggressive march with East European flavor. This movement is based on Weber's Huit Pièces pour le pianoforte à quatre mains (Op.10), No.1, composed in 1809. The movement closes with an elaborate bit of counterpoint for the flute, which has been said to resemble bird song.

II. Turandot, Scherzo – A whimsical and delicate movement with a distinct oriental flavor. The theme is based on the overture to Weber’s Turandot (which is itself based on an original Chinese song). The middle section features the brass, woodwind, and percussion sections in turn.

III. Andantino – This slow movement is based on Weber's Six Pièces pour le pianoforte à quatre mains (Op.60), No.4, composed in 1818. The original theme was meant to be a funeral march; Hindemith doubles the tempo to give the previously morbid tune a jaunty, catchy feel.

IV. March – Possibly the best known movement, it opens with a set of fanfares. Like the first movement, this one is also based on Huit Pièces pour le pianoforte à quatre mains, this time focusing on No.7. The original theme was meant to be a funeral march; Hindemith doubles the tempo to give the previously morbid tune a jaunty, catchy feel.

The transcription was completed at Hindemith’s request by his Yale University colleague, Keith Wilson. This evening, the Chapman Wind Symphony will perform the 4th movement, March.

Symphony No.3 “Slavyanskaya” (1950)

Legend would tell us that the United States Marine Band (“The President’s Own”) performed a feat of great espionage upon their return home from the Soviet Union in 1990. As the military tells us, “Combining music of Sousa with images of Lenin, the Marine Band toured five cities in the former Soviet Union, becoming the only American military band to tour the USSR before its transformation into independent states.” The tour generated a bounty of propaganda during the waning months of the Cold War.

What we did not learn about until years later was the wealth of Russian band music discovered by the Marine Band musicians while on tour and, as some would tell, smuggled into the United States upon the band’s return home. Boris Kozhevnikov’s Slavyanskaya Symphony is one of a handful of contraband works heretofore never heard in the Western world until the fall of the Iron Curtain. Although composed in the late 1950s, the contemporary performance edition of this remarkable symphony is the product of the acclaimed U.S. Marine Band conductor, Col. John Bourgeois.

Colonial Song (1919)

Percy Aldridge Grainger was an Australian composer known for his musical genius as well as his eccentric and odd personality. Grainger’s parents separated early on in his life and his mother, Rose, became his sole parental figure and a great influence. His mother noticed his early interest in music and, at the age of 14, he began studying piano. Grainger went on to study composition in London and Paris, and later moved to America.

Grainger provides the following notes in his highly colorful (and quite unique) description of the piece:

No traditional tunes of any kind are made use of in this piece, in which I have wished to express feelings aroused by thoughts of the scenery and people of my native land (Australia), and also to voice a certain kind of emotion that seems to me not untypical of native-born Colonials in general.

Perhaps it is not unnatural that people living more or less lonelily in vast virgin countries and struggling against natural and climatic hardships (rather than against the more actively and dramatically exciting counter wills of the fellow men, as in more thickly populated lands) should run largely to that patiently yearning inactive sentimental wistful emotion that we find so touchingly expressed in much American art; for instance in Mark Twain’s “Huckleberry Finn,” and in Stephen C. Foster’s adorable songs “My Old Kentucky Home,” “Old Folks at Home,” etc.

I have also noticed curious, almost Italian-like musical tendencies in brass band performances and ways of singing in Australia (such as a preference for richness and intensity of tone and soulful breadth of phrasing over more subtly and sensitively varied delicacies of expression), which are also reflected here.

-Priscilla Peraza

The composer, Frank Ticheli, writes the following about the piece:

The finale, "Apollo Unleashed," is perhaps the most wide-ranging movement of the symphony, and certainly the most difficult to convey in words. On the one hand, the image of Apollo, the powerful ancient god of the sun, inspired not only the movement's title, but also its blazing energy. Bright sonorities, fast tempos, and galloping rhythms combine to give a sense of urgency that one often expects from a symphonic finale. On the other hand, its boisterous nature is also tempered and enriched by another, more sublime force, Bach's Chorale BWV 433 (Wer Gott vertraut, hat wohl gebaut). This chorale -- a favorite of the dedicatee, and one he himself arranged for chorus and band -- serves as a kind of spiritual anchor, giving a soul to the gregarious foreground events. The chorale is in ternary form (ABA'). In the first half of the movement, the chorale's A and B sections are stated nobly underneath faster paced music, while the final A section is saved for the climactic ending, sounding against a flurry of 16th-notes.

My second symphony is dedicated to James E. Croft upon his retirement as Director of Bands at Florida State University in 2003. It was commissioned by a consortium of Dr. Croft's doctoral students, conducting students and friends as a gesture of thanks for all he has given to the profession.

Frank Ticheli is an American composer most notable for his works for concert band. He received his masters and doctoral degrees from the University of Michigan in composition. Ticheli has held the prestigious position of composer-in-residence for the Pacific Symphony, and currently serves as composition professor at the USC Thornton School of Music. He has received three awards from the Academy of Arts and Letters, and his Symphony No. 2 was winner of the 2006 NBA/William D. Revelli Memorial Band Composition Contest.

Dear Alumni, Parents and Friends:

Last year we welcomed over 11,000 audience members to our performances, concerts, recitals and events, making it our best attended year ever. We are proud to showcase the talents of our students, while at the same time providing them with learning experiences that take them outside the traditional classroom.

As a lover of the arts, you have a crucial role to play to ensure our success and the success of the students who are at the heart of all we do. It is my hope that you will help provide our students with the tools and resources they need with your gift to the Fund for Excellence.

A gift to the Fund directly supports these College priorities:

- Production costs for the 200-plus live performances of dance, music, theatre and opera the College produces each year;
- Recruitment of professional visiting artists for technique and master classes;
- Scholarships and travel funds for our student touring ensembles and conferences.

Performances like the one you are about to see are vital components of our students’ academic and artistic curriculum, helping them to develop practical skills and artistic sensibilities. Our students graduate with more training, more experience and more professional opportunities to launch their careers in the performing arts and performing arts education.

Each one of our students will benefit from your decision to support the College. With your gift, you will be a part of a family of individuals who demonstrate, year after year, their commitment to developing the talents of young artists. I hope you join us not only because you value the arts, but because you want to invest in our next generation of artists.

Enjoy the performance, and I look forward to seeing you again at our performances throughout the year.

Sincerely,

Dale A. Merrill, Dean
