Hello Sweetheart:

I'm at the enlisted men's service club having a sandwich and since I've just bought this stationary at the PX I decided to initiate it by writing you. Please excuse the pencil as I haven't my pen with me. Really don't know what to write about so will ramble along hoping you can make some sense out of this letter. I'm going to a movie in about an hour then eat chow and then at 1630 to my new job. I hope I won't have to use a big black whip on the boys - I'm only kidding. Trying to figure out beforehand what is wrong with my new flight, I believe the other flight Chief did not have enough confidence in each man. Potentially it is one of the best flights yet something went wrong. I'm sure I'll straighten it out. See, you're not the only one who talks of their work.

I've been so impatient lately with the way time is dragging. When I'll be with you I'm sure time will fly faster than a jet plane. No letter from you today but did receive one from my ex-wife. She's moved to Staten Island, New York and it's O.K. with me. Looking forward to receiving some word from you tomorrow. Your letters lately have been so very sweet and revealing too.

Darling, I miss your sweet kisses and the way you escort and embrace me. Letters to me seem to be so futile when it comes to express one's feelings so try to read between the lines. Impatiently waiting to be with you I am,

Yours
Walter
