“I Can Take an Empty Space and Call it a Bare Stage”: Searching for a Through-Line in the Diverse Roles of the Theatre Director

Bettina Mueller-Tuescher
Chapman University, muell127@mail.chapman.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.chapman.edu/cusrd_abstracts
Part of the Theatre and Performance Studies Commons

Recommended Citation
http://digitalcommons.chapman.edu/cusrd_abstracts/30

This Poster is brought to you for free and open access by the Office of Undergraduate Research and Creative Activity at Chapman University Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Student Research Day Abstracts and Posters by an authorized administrator of Chapman University Digital Commons. For more information, please contact laughtin@chapman.edu.
“I Can Take an Empty Space and Call it a Bare Stage”:
Searching for a Through-Line in the Diverse Roles of the Theatre Director
Bettina Mueller-Tuescher, mentored by Dr. Jocelyn L. Buckner
Chapman University Department of Theatre

Who is the Director?

“I can take an empty space and call it a bare stage. A man walks across this empty space whilst someone else is watching, and that is all that is needed for an act of theatre to be engaged.”
-Peter Brook, _The Empty Space_

The director’s part in any theatrical production is multifaceted. My objective in this thesis is to examine and define the role of the director in a variety of different theatrical contexts both through research and practical application of my skills.

Methodology

I investigated directorial roles through two different approaches: I researched the directing philosophies of acclaimed directors Peter Brook and Anne Bogart, and concurrently directed three diverse projects throughout the semester: staged readings of both John Patrick Shanley’s _Doubt: A Parable_ and the newly devised _Trojan Whores_ by Isabelle Grimm; and assistant directed Nicholas Avila in Chapman’s mainstage production of _Anna in the Tropics_ by Nilo Cruz.

“While you watch an artist work, you watch them throw themselves off balance and then fight for balance. And that is a heroic act.”
-Anne Bogart, _Balancing Act_

Throughout running and participating in such a diverse collection of rehearsal processes and performances over the course of the semester, I was able to implement skills I gained from my research as well as learn by doing and adjusting the directing techniques in which I had previously been trained.

Conclusions

Trojan Whores rehearsal

The director is a storyteller. They must conceive of the overall vision, guide and collaborate with others in order to achieve this vision, synthesize all creative input into cohesion, and make the story relevant to its audience community.

“Truth can never be defined, nor grasped, but the theatre is a machine which enables all its participants to taste an aspect of truth within a moment.”
-Peter Brook, _The Open Door_