Honey:

It is evening and I am so very tired and somewhat depressed. What a let down to come to. It is cold and windy, the tarred paper barracks and plain wood floors are no incentive for cheerfulness.

Darling I can't really express how lonely I am for your loving arms and sweet kisses. I can't express either how grateful I am for ^{you} being so nice to me during my stay with you.

I have wonderful memories and knowing you love me makes life a great deal brighter, in fact brighter than it has ever been before.

You will forgive me dear, won't you if I make this a short letter - I'm so tired. Received a letter from my nephew but he can't say much, censor you know. Also have a letter from my ex which I will let you read when next I see you.

When in Las Vegas I noticed posters announcing that the Hildorada and Rodeo days are for the 17th, 18th, 19th, and 20th of May. That's approximately three weeks away. Although I would like to have you see it I think you will agree that you actually cannot afford to take any time off from your new job or the others either.

Well Moms, you don't mind my calling you moms do you, I love you and want your hugs tonight. Guess I've got to wait another three weeks before that is possible. If you read this letter before going to bed I want to say "Good-night Sweetheart" and remember I am always with you.

Good-night my "Future"

Wally

P.S. I'm not going to work tonight. I am on the mid-night to 9:00 A.M. shift this week:
Um-um-um-such a big kiss I just gave you Darling.

Love again
W.
