The Citrus Institute

The special purpose of the Citrus Institute is to arouse intelligent interest in the new Citrus Experiment Station on the part of growers, and to secure suggestions from them as to work it should undertake.

Sessions will begin promptly on time designated. No changes in the program will be made unless wholly unavoidable, and the addresses will be given on the day designated.

General discussion will follow each paper; speakers limited to five minutes each, except by unanimous consent. Discussions will close in time for the following number to commence promptly as designated.

Arrangements have been made for reduced rates at the Glenwood (American), Holyrood (American) and Reynolds (European) hotels.

One-third return fare on all railroads will be granted delegates procuring certificates at home office.
