

10-18-2009

Creepy 1950s Sci-Fi Classic to Screen Oct. 23

Chapman University Media Relations

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.chapman.edu/press_releases

 Part of the Higher Education Commons, and the Higher Education Administration Commons

Recommended Citation

Chapman University Media Relations, "Creepy 1950s Sci-Fi Classic to Screen Oct. 23" (2009). Chapman Press Releases 2003-2011. Paper 64.

http://digitalcommons.chapman.edu/press_releases/64

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Chapman Press at Chapman University Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Chapman Press Releases 2003-2011 by an authorized administrator of Chapman University Digital Commons. For more information, please contact laughtin@chapman.edu.

Creepy 1950s Sci-Fi Classic to Screen Oct. 23

Friday, October 23

Fahmy Attallah, Ph.D. Piazza

Jim & Marla's Black and White Film Festival

Them!

8 p.m.

A little girl is found wandering in the desert, in a state of complete shock. When she finally revives, she can scream out only one word: "Them!" Any aficionado of 1950s horror films can readily tell you that "Them" are giant ants, a byproduct of the radiation attending the atomic bomb tests of the era. Extremely well organized, these deadly eight-to-twenty-foot mutations converge on the storm drains of Los Angeles in the finale. Forming a united front against the oncoming ant battalions are New Mexico police sergeant James Whitmore, FBI representative James Arness, and father-and-daughter entomologists Edmund Gwenn and Joan Weldon. For information call 714-744-7693 Admission is free along with the popcorn and lemonade!