Monday 9:30 AM.

Dearest,

This is a funny time of day for me to be writing a letter but I feel very miserable and so I'm turning to my Pop for a little comfort. I had a very upset night - kept waking up frequently and all night I filled up more and more with gas, so that by morning I could hardly move. I've been trying to work it off but, of course, I'm supposed to stay off my feet so I can't do anything strenuous. It's terribly painful and sometimes I almost pass out from it.

I've got to get straightened out by this noon because I've some business appointments downtown at the Govt. offices and I should get the car lubed, etc. today as it will breakdown from too little attention.

It was sweet of you to call me back last night, honey. I'm afraid I called you at a bad time and embarrassed you. But it was fun to talk ~~call~~ you twice in a few hours. Guess you think I'm a crazy gal but I miss you so much Pop even a few minutes of talking to you makes so much difference.

I'm so terribly sorry about your restriction - I know time is heavy on your hands when you can't go to shows and the Service Club. It all seems so unfair. Did they bawl you out very much when they spoke to you?

I'm going to tell the boss that you're coming in on Sunday and I'd like either Monday or Tuesday off. He's a good scout and will understand - I hope. Anyway I can work harder the rest of the week to make up for it.

If I know when your landing at the field (if you come in at Mines Field) I will pick you up there. I forgot if you said you'd come to Mines Field or March Field. I'd get a kick out of meeting you at the Air Field. Please don't forget to tell me if I may.

Boy it's going to be hard for me to wait this week. Here it is only Monday morning and I'm dreaming constantly of your coming in next Sunday afternoon. Guess I've fallen pretty hard - do you mind the job of picking up the pieces?

You know I feel much better since I started writing to you. It seems to settle my nerves.

I should get a couple of letters from you today - Friday's & Saturday's letters. The mailman's been holding out on me again.

Guess I'll go call the office now and tell them why I didn't come to work this morning.

I want to see you so much and feel your arms around me and your kisses on my lips, and oh, just to have you near me - It's hard to say - but it's something like I feel lovingly around
