My dear Mrs. Linstadt:

I am glad to be able to tell you that our report of October 18, shows us that your son, Robert G. Linstadt, of the 46th Co., A. A. R. D., Camp Pike, was a great deal better, and practically out of all danger, unless something very unexpected arises.

He has asked us to write you about his condition, and to give you his love, and that he hoped to be writing to you himself before long.

It is such a pleasure to have this good news for you.

Sincerely yours,

W. R. Castle, Jr.

N

[Page 1 – Typed Letter (no envelope)]

[[This letter is a typed correspondence sent from William R. Castle, Jr., Director of the Bureau of Communication within the National Headquarters of the Red Cross (in Washington D.C.). It provides the good news to Robert Lindstadt's mother, Sophia, that he is no longer in any danger from his illness as of October 18. This correspondence was issued on Robert's behalf and is personally signed by Castle, with what looks like a censor's hasty signature on the bottom of the page, over a faded watermark.]]
