Fear Future,

That makes me have the very nicest future of anyone I know!

I received your short letters of the 8th + 9th and I could detect a certain coolness - I think you were cross at me because I had no letter for two days. I hope you received them all on the very next day, because you really had no cause to be angry with me. I've written each day since you left except one - which was a bad day - but I wrote two the next day to make up for it.

Regarding that bad day I'm beginning to regret it - don't like the results one bit - guess I'll just have to take it now since I asked for it!!

Honey I've had such a terrible yearning to see you and talk to you today - I can hardly keep from talking aloud to you sometimes - I get to thinking so hard about you. I am wishing so hard for the San Diego deal for you - but I'm so very much afraid to put my hopes on it - the disappointment would hurt me so. I'm so dreadfully lonesome now I just don't know what I'll do after you are farther away.

I don't want to be alone anymore - I want my Pap with me always.

I stayed home and let the girls work the show tonight. First I went and had a nice steak at the steak house, then drove to Glenside St. to see about the Paliti's, but they weren't there. When I came home I ironed six shirts & blouses and now I'm tired out and it's after midnight.

I've had to argue myself out of calling you tonight. I seemed to need you so much. But I could tell from your letters you were on the 7:30 a.m. shift this week so I decided a call would get you out of bed. Perhaps I'll call you tomorrow night if you don't call me.

Darling, I love you so much and am so blue just wanting you here with me - I can't keep from crying anymore.

Do you want me much like that Pap?

Sunday seems such a long way off with all of Saturday in between.

Hold me close in your heart
and I'll be yours forever.

Dear “Future,”

That makes me have the very nicest
future of anyone I know!

I received your short letters of the 8th & 9th and I could detect a certain coolness – I think you were crass at me because you had no letter for two days. I hope you received them all on the very next day,
because you really have no cause to be angry with me. I’ve written each day since you left except one – which was a bad day – but I wrote two the next day to make up for it.
Regarding that bad day I’m beginning to regret it – don’t like the results one bit – guess I’ll just have to take it now since I asked for it !!

Honey I’ve had such a terrible yearning to see you and talk to you today. I can hardly keep from talking aloud to you sometimes – I get to thinking so hard about you.

I am wishing so hard for the San Diego deal for you – but I’m so very much afraid to put my hopes on it – the disappointment would hurt me so. I’m so dreadfully lonesome not I just don’t know what I’ll do after you are farther away.

I don't want to be alone anymore – I want my Pop with me always.

I stayed home and let the girls work the show tonight. First I went and had a nice steak at the steak house then drove to Olvera St.
to see about the Polites's, but they weren't there.
When I came home I ironed six shirts & blouses
and now I'm tired out and its after midnight.

I've had to argue myself out of calling you tonight. I seemed to need you so much.
But I could tell from you letters you were on the 7:30 A.M. shift this week so I decided a call would get you out of bed. Perhaps I'll call you tomorrow night if you don't call me.

Darling, I love you so much and am so blue just wanting you here with me – I can't keep from crying anymore.
Do you want me much like that Pop?
Sunday seems such a long way off with All of Saturday in between.

Hold me close in your heart

And I'll be yours forever
