Dearest darling,

How is my sweet little wife today? Fine I hope. Too bad we couldn't be together this weekend, but probably next week end I'll be over.

I got into camp for an hour this afternoon - just long enough to take a shower, shave, and put on some clean clothes. Boy do I feel better. I was beginning to get a trifle crusty.

Your letter came this afternoon just as I got back from camp. It's so nice to get your letters, honey. You always write such good ones.

We moved again last nite. I hope the next move is into camp. Every time we move we have to dig another slit trench. Then fill it up when we leave. Makes sense, doesn't it?

Not much to write about out here in the woods, honey, but I can always tell you

I love you, and I never tire of telling you that. Maybe I'll be able to write a better one tomorrow, darling. All my love to my cute sweetie and my sweet cutie,

Your biscuit baking lover,
Jack

P.S. I love you very much, sweetheart!
