Apr 14,

Darling Sweetheart,

Gosh, it sure did turn cold. It was pretty warm to-day. But this evening it turned kind of chilly.

I was talking to Jean Gibson and she said she thought perhaps her mother would like to rent our place.
That would be real nice. The only trouble is that she doesn't know how long she will stay. She may only be here for two or three months.
Of course I may only be there with you for that length of time too but then it might be longer and I would hate to have some one move out while I was still there.

Well anyway, when you come home we can talk it all over. You will know as much about it as I do. any way I always like to have you here with me when I do anything. I feel better when you are with me to make decisions.

Darling, I always have so much confidence in what you think.
You seem to be so wise. I like poor little me, I'm always such a dummy. I do everything wrong.
That's why I'm glad I married some one with brains.

Sweetheart, I have a little something to confess to you, I'm in love ~~with~~ with a certain soldier. He is a real cutie boy. Not so very tall, but he has a pair of shoulders on him that need no padding. He has an adorable smile with the most beautiful teeth I have ever seen and pretty brown eyes with real long lashes that most girls would envy and can he ever kiss, wowie —, he sure can put himself across in a big way. And he is my sweet little graham cracker boy.

Dearest, I love you so. You mean so much to me. When I get a gay happy letter from you then I feel happy. But you must always write cheerful letters. You are such a grand person.

Sweetheart, I'm afraid this is going to be a shorty Bell again. Perhaps to-morrow I can write you a nice long long letter.

I'm enclosing a bunch of hugs and kisses and all my love, your Oron,
 Fink.
