10-14-1944

1944-10-14, Jack to Evabel

Jack P. Bell
1944-10-14, Jack to Evabel

Keywords
October, 1944; 1944; United States; New York, N.Y.; Elyria, Ohio; army; soldiers; troops; signal corps; correspondence; postal service; infantry; wife; husband; women at home; women; love; romance; censorship; V-mail; ocean travel; transportation; weather; good weather; post-war hopes; friendship; camaraderie; mobilization

Identifier
2014.160.w.r_Bell_worldwartwo_1944-10-14_028
Dear Sweetheart,

Here goes my first V mail letter. Of course I won't be able to mail it till we land, but maybe I'll be able to write several by that time.

The accommodations aboard ship are much better than I thought they'd be. The breeze is nice and fresh upon deck.

I met one of the fellows I came into the army with. Hadn't seen him for over a year. His wife lives in Elyria.

Darling, I love you so. It will be such a happy day when this mess is all over, and we can be together for keeps. Life together is so wonderful, sweetie. Keep your chin up, honey.

I'll write this up now, sweetie, and try to write more tomorrow. All my love to the sweetest wife in all the world.

Yours always,

Jack
Sat. Oct. 14, 1944

Dearest Sweetheart,

Here goes my first V mail letter. Of course I wont [sic] be able to mail it till we land, but maybe I'll be able to write several by that time.

The accommodations [sic] aboard ship are much better than I thought they'd be. The breeze is nice and fresh up on deck.

I met one of the fellows I came into the army with. Hadn't seen him for over a year. His wife lives on Wooster St. in Elyria.

Darling, I love you so. It will be such a happy day when this mess is all over, and we can be together for keeps. Life together is so wonderful, sweetie. Keep your chin up, honey.

I'll wind this up now, sweetie, and try to write more tomorrow. All my love to the sweetest wife in all the world,

Yours allways [sic],

[underscore] Jack [[/underscore]]