My dear Ray:

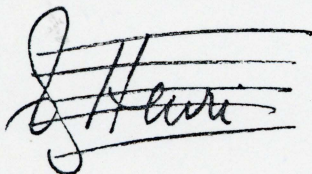

How privileged and fortunate I am to be able to bask in the warmth and generosity of your friendship! Your gifts, so magnificent in themselves, are further enhanced by your obvious joy in giving, as evidenced by your loving words. The Playboy Art book is a stunning discovery, greatly enriched by your text. The book contains a surprising amount of exciting art, some of which will endure long after the last bunnies have been laid end-to-end.

Another wonderful surprise are your audiotapes. You are a raconteur par excellence. The range and diversity of your talents is astounding, to say nothing of your productivity, which makes Bach, Handel and Mozart look like feeble procrastinators.

Thank you for celebrating Pepperdine so lavishly!

Emmy joins me in sending loving thoughts to you and Maggie, and every good wish for a wonderful 1987,

Notre Amitie est invariable!
