Darling Fink,

Please excuse me for not writing last nite sweetie, but I was on guard. Four hours straight from six to ten so when I got thru' I just popped into bed. I like it better that way tho' than splitting it up into two, two hour shifts.

So far I like it better here than I did in the fighting lightning division. We don't have any formations. There's a lot of work, but I'd rather work any day than have to stand a bunch of those chump formations. The food is really tops here. Quartermaster always gets first choice of the food, and they really get good stuff. We've been having pie twice a day.

This refrigeration isn't really as hard to learn as it seemed from reading the information in the book.

I heard some of the fellows talking about a news broadcast they heard on the radio. I don't know how authentic it is, but they said it had something to do with releasing men with two years service.

Oh darling what a happy day it's going to be when I can come home to you for keeps. I love you so sweetheart, and every day I miss you more. We have so much love making to catch up on that we'll just have to spend the rest of our lives making love. And how you're going to be loved darling. You have so many sweet delicious dimples to be kissed. I'll just be pestering you all the time honey.

I know my letters must all sound alike sweetie, but coming home to you is all I can think about, and all that's worth thinking about. You are my everything darling, and I'm just existing till that happy day when this separation is but a memory,

And we can enjoy our good way of life together again. You're such a wonderful person to be married to darling Fink. I'm the happiest and proudest and luckiest fellow in the world to have you for my own little heartbeat.

I'm enclosing millions of hugs
and kisses, and all my love.

Your lover,
Jack
