Mr. John Christie, Editor
THE INSTRUMENTALIST

Dear Mr. Christie,

Thank you for your kind letter of August 17. I am entirely in agreement with all you say. Should pressures during the concert season at any time become too heavy, I shall indeed ask one of my colleagues to write a guest column. In the meantime I am assuming that the deadline for the November issue is the end of October, and that there is no purpose to my sending any further material until that time.

I certainly share the hope that we may meet at some convention or clinic during the year. If you feel that my appearance at one of these conventions could serve the promotional interests of THE INSTRUMENTALIST, feel free to suggest my name. My schedule is so heavy that I frequently fail to be aware of the time and place of these events. If you were to contact me far enough in advance, I might be able to obtain a substantial part of the necessary monies from my college.

With kind regards,

Yours cordially,

HENRI TEMIANKA
