Darling Lover,

I'm sitting here on my cot in a nice clean pair of pajamas feeling like a million. I really enjoy these pajamas sweetie.

Went to the show tonite and saw, "The woman in the Window." I'd seen it before, but it's a good picture, and was worth seeing again.

I told you in last nites' letter that I was going to Brussels tonite. For some reason or other they cancelled the Brussels passes at the base depot so that's out for this time. I'm not disappointed tho' 'cause I never count on anything in this army.

Darling I love you so very much. I'm always thinking of how wonderful it will be when we're together doing all these things we're writing about now. Like how grand it is to spend these cool nites reading. I used to enjoy that so much when we'd go to the library, and get an armful of books. Or maybe we'd draw the blinds in the living room, and spend the evening making love. Or we'd be in one of our playful moods, and maybe you'd put on a little outfit for me. Oh lover no matter what we do it's wonderful because we are together. You're such a dear sweet-lover girl that I'll just want to be hugging you and kissing you all the time.

I think I'll crawl into bed now sweetie. I'll see you in my dreams. All my love and millions of hugs and kisses.

Yours own,
Jack
