Darling Fink,

Today the mail came in. First in three days. I got yours of Oct. 23rd, and one from Mom and Dad.

Sure was glad to hear that Jim is home. I get a kick out of hearing about him getting up at 5 o’clock in the morning and looking all over the house.

You won’t have to worry about me not putting my arms around you sweetie. In fact you may even get tired of me always bothering you. I don’t think you will this. Will you, darling? We’ll just want to love all the time.

Some of the boys are going to Metz, France tomorrow, and start hauling turkeys for Thanksgiving.

Darling, I just keep checking the days off. One closer, one closer. How wonderful it’s going to be to hold you in my arms, close. You’re such a sweet cutie and a cute sweetie and love you. Our life together was so sweet darling, and it will be even better in the future if that is possible. It’s going to be so grand to come home from work in the afternoon, and have you waiting for me all dressed up neat and sweet. And then in the evening maybe we’ll go to a show or stay home. It doesn’t really matter what we do. As long as we’re together I’m happy.

We had my favorite dinner today. Steak and French fries, but darling no one can cook to my satisfaction like you can. I’ll probably eat like a horse when I come home.

I’m enclosing millions of hugs and kisses and all my love.

Yours, Own,

Jack
