Dearest darling,

This will probably be a Shorty Bell as I don't have much to write about, but I wanted to say hellos to my little sweetheart anyway.

Les Melroe, one of my room mates here is writing also. We have a nice fire going, and it's really comfortable here. I finished up my guard, and spent most of the afternoon sleeping. Then I went over, and had a shower before supper. Guard comes often here, but they give you a nice break, and leave you the rest of the day to yourself. I'm glad as long as I have to be over here a little longer that I'm in this company. It's so much better than the old 'fightin' lightnin'. I know the time seems to go much faster here than it would back there.

Oh darling we're going to have such wonderful times when I come home. It will be so grand taking you places. I'm the proudest fellow in the world when I'm with you. I love you so sweetheart, and every day I miss you more. I miss all the little things like the mischievous look you'd get on your face when you'd start kidding about something, and how beautiful your eyes are. And no matter how sound asleep you were you could always sort of manage to slip your arm around my neck when I started to kiss you. You're such a dear sweet darling Fink, and I'm the luckiest fellow in the world to have you for my own dear precious wife.

I'm enclosing millions of hugs and kisses and all my love.

Your own,

Jack
