12-12-1945

Jack P. Bell World War Two Correspondence #632

Jack P. Bell

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.chapman.edu/bell_collection

Recommended Citation
Bell, Jack P., "Jack P. Bell World War Two Correspondence #632" (1945). Jack P. Bell World War Two Correspondence Collection. 634.
https://digitalcommons.chapman.edu/bell_collection/634

This Letter is brought to you for free and open access by the CAWL Archives: Second World War at Chapman University Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Jack P. Bell World War Two Correspondence Collection by an authorized administrator of Chapman University Digital Commons. For more information, please contact laughtin@chapman.edu.
Mrs. Jack Bell
345 W. River St.
Elyria, Ohio
Kassel
December 12

Darling Wife,

Please forgive me for not writing the past couple days but I've been busy as the dickens.

Monday we got a late start and didn't get here till about nine o'clock in the evening. That officer in Greensburg said there were two of these storage plants to dismantle about a two day job. When we got here there turned out to be five of them so it looks like I'll be here till Friday night at least.

For some reason there's a terrific gasoline shortage here in Kassel. It reminds me of rationing back home.

I'd sure be glad to get back so I can get my letters from you sweetie. It's very comfortable here, but I miss mail call.

Darling I love you so very much. I'm just counting each day that goes past. It can't be too much longer till we'll we together darling.

There's been a lot more snow here than there was in Sick. It sort of helps to cover up some of the wreckage. It will take a long time before towns like this are rebuilt, and look like cities again. It's sure going to be nice to come back home, and see things the way they should be.

WELL, I know I'll sit the hay, and dream of my darling wife whom I love so very much.

Your Own, Jack.
T/5 John P. Bell 35052495
279th QM Ref. Co. APO758
c/o PM New York, N.Y.

Free

Mrs. Jack Bell
345 W. River St.
Elyria, Ohio

[[Bell Correspondence #26]]

[[Page 1 - Envelope]]
Kassel
December 12

Darling Wife,

Please forgive me for not writing the past couple days, but I’ve been busy as the dickens.

Monday we got a late start, and didn’t get here till about nine o’clock in the evening. That officer in Giessen said there were two of these storage plants to dismantle. About a two day job. When we got here there turned out to be five of them so it looks like I’ll be here till Friday nite at least.

For some reason there’s a terrific gasoline shortage here in Kassel. It reminds me of rationing back home.

I’ll sure be glad to get back so I can get my letters from you sweetie. It’s very comfortable here, but I miss mail call.

Darling I love you so very much. I’m just counting each day that goes past. It can’t be too much longer till we’ll be together darling.

There’s been a lot more snow here than there was in Lich. It sort of helps to cover up some of the wreckage. It will take a long time before towns like this are rebuilt, and look like cities again. It’s sure going to be nice to come back home, and see things the way they should be.

Well lover I think I’ll hit the hay, and dream of my darling wife whom I love so very much.

Your Own,

 [[underline]] Jack [[/underline]]