Program Notes

Loops II:
In this Loops, I have added an extra level to the principle of looping. The piece is so constructed that the process of cell transformation always brings you back to the motif announced at the outset. Although the music may seem to be undergoing perpetual transformation because of the morphing process, the listener will nevertheless feel it is going round in circles, since each long procedure brings you back to the starting point, like the little local loops that you can hear throughout the piece.

As the work was intended to be used for an advanced-level vibraphone competition, I thought about introducing more difficult playing techniques than in Loops I for flute. Although I had no desire to use the instrument in ways not intended for it, I did want the performer to get to grips with a variety of techniques in a virtuoso context. For example, the piece ends with a long section in chords, which cannot be justified only on a compositional level. This section - like other, very different sections in the work - acts as a "study" and involves the performer in specific technical study.

Despite this, Loops II remains a very playful piece full of rhythmic energy, and I wrote it in a spirit of great pleasure and jubilation. It constitutes another stage of my work on percussion, and on the vibraphone in particular, which was begun in 1996 with ... à mesure, where the vibraphone plays a dominant role, and continued in 1999 and 2000 with the Tombeau in memoriam Gérard Grisey and the Four variations for percussion and ensemble, in which the vibraphone takes on the role of a concerto soloist. (Philippe Hurel)

Two Mexican Dances:
1974. The first Mexican Dance was originally the ninth etude from Etudes for Marimba, Book 2. Warren Benson thought that the character of the music of the first dance was very different from the rest of the etudes of Book 2. He suggested that I remove it from that collection, write a second piece in a similar style, and call them Two Mexican Dances. Thus the dedication of the two pieces to Warren Benson. So I didn't think of the first dance as being Mexican. I had never been to Mexico at that point in my life. Warren Benson however, heard something that made him think that. The first dance was composed in one day, with no revisions or changes. The second dance was begun on vibes, and took much longer to compose. (Gordon Stout)

night-breath:
night-breath, for soprano and metal percussion, uses as its primary text a late 16th century meditation by the enigmatic Taoist figure Huanchu Daoren. In keeping with the contemplative and atmospheric nature of the meditation's poetry, the work seeks to not only reveal this text in a linear sense, but to also generate fertile sound environments in which this evocative, serene, and often potent verse may contentedly reside. (Sean Heim

On Clear Mind:
On Clear Mind describes the method of Chan (Zen) practice from the state of self to the state of no-self. The poem was written by Chan Master Han Shan (1546-1623) for beginning students' guidance, and was translated by Chan Master Sheng-yen (1931-2009). Han Shan compared the mind to muddy water - in order to calm our mind we have to keep it perfectly still so that the mud will settle to the bottom, leaving the water clear. The important thing is not to allow waves of vexation to stir up the mud again. If there is a self, the turbulence in the outer realm will cause your mind to move. The mind emptied of self will naturally be calm and peaceful, impervious to any obstruction. You will feel free and independent, and as far as you are concerned, nothing can transcend it. (Chih-Chen Wei)

True nature is pure and deep
Like clear still water.
If beaten with hate or love
Waves of vexation arise.
Arising without cease
Self-nature becomes turbid.
Vexations and ignorance
Ever increase unconsciously.

Program Notes

Self grasping another
Is like mud entering water.
Self moved by another
Is like throwing fat on the fire.
While the outer realm is chaos, self is true.

When chaos is taken to be real, self is born.
If self is not born
Vexations, burning for eons, turn to ice.

Thus perfected ones
First empty the defilement of self.
When the defilement of self is emptied
How can the outer realm be an obstruction?
Resilience is the function
Of the self forgotten.
As soon as idiosyncrasies appear
You recognize them immediately.

The point of recognitions is enlightenment.
The instant one thought returns to brightness
All traces are swept away.
That moment is refreshing.
Refreshing, quiescent,
Peerless, independent,
Tranquil, harmonious.
Nothing can match it.

Pius Cheung is a marimbist and composer, hailed as "a young Chinese-Canadian virtuoso," by the New York Times. He received his Bachelor of Music from the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia, his Artist Diploma from The Boston Conservatory, and his Doctorate from the University of Michigan. He currently directs the percussion program at the University of Oregon.

Gordon Stout is currently Professor of Percussion at the School of Music, Ithaca College, Ithaca, N.Y., where he has taught percussion since 1980. Composers

As a composer-recitalist he has premiered a number of his original compositions and works by other contemporary composers. Many of his compositions for marimba are published, and have already become standard repertoire for marimbists world-wide. A frequent lecture-recitalist for the Percussive Arts Society, he has appeared at twelve International PAS Conventions to date, as featured marimbit, as well as throughout the United States and Canada, Europe, Japan, Taiwan, Thailand, Singapore, Hungary, Mexico, Denmark, Puerto Rico, and Spain. In May of 1983 he performed clinics and recitals in France, Germany, Holland and Belgium with "transcendental virtuosity", being described as "the Rubinstein of all aspects of the marimba".

Gordon will be inducted into the PAS Hall of Fame in November of 2012 at PASIC 2-12/ Austin, TX. Gordon is a clinician/recitalist for Malletech, and performs on and owns their M5.0 Roadster five-octave marimba. Gordon Stout is represented by the Percussion Events Registry Company. For information about having Gordon appear at your school or music festival, etc., please contact Lauren Vogel Weiss (See "Contact"). Gordon is also an endorser of Dream Cymbals and Gongs.

The music of Ben Hackbarth is focused on combining instruments and electronic sound in new and unexpected ways. His electro-acoustic compositions revolve around the timbres, gestures and acoustical properties of western instruments. Through mapping notions of instrumental identity, tradition, technique and virtuosity onto electronic sound, he seeks to engage and enlarge our semantic understanding of instruments, emphasizing the perception of boundaries and limitations to create friction and form.

He is currently a Ph.D. candidate at the University of California, San Diego where he studies composition with Roger Reynolds. At UCSD he has also worked with Philippe Manoury, Miller Puckette and obtained a master's degree while studying with Chaya Czernowin. He has a bachelor's in composition from the Eastman School of Music where he studied with Allan Schindler, Bob Morris, Martin Bresnick, Christopher Rouse. Ben is also a composer and researcher at the Center for Research and Computing in the Arts. At CRCA, he has collaborated with other artists to create multimedia installations with realtime graphics, sound, computer vision and motion tracking.

He has had performances by the Arditti String Quartet, Ensemble InterContemporain, Ensemble SurPlus, the Collage New Music Ensemble, the Kenners and the Wet Ink Ensemble. His music has been presented at Cité de la Musique, Akademie Schloss Solitude, the SEAMUS festival, SIGGRAPH, the Florida Electro-acoustic Music
Composers

Festival, the Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival, E-Werk, the Pelt Gallery, the Festival of New American Music, the San Diego Museum of Art, the Ingenuity Festival, the Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery, and the Roulette Concert Space. Ben's music can be heard on CD releases by SEAMUS, UCSD and Carrier Records.

The primary focus of Sean Heim's work as a composer has been to develop an imaginative personal language that strongly reflects the compositional techniques and aesthetic of his own western tradition as well as the distillation and infusion of philosophical ideas and musical elements found in numerous cultures. His music also reflects a deep interest in physics and the natural world, and it is out of these collective curiosities that he has created unique fusions that continually evolve by means of increased conceptual and technical abstraction.

Heim has received numerous prizes, awards, honors, and commissions from such prestigious institutions as the Fromm Music Foundation, the National Endowment for the Arts, Meet the Composer, the American Music Center, the Atlantic Center for the Arts, the Diepe Art, the Ingenuity Festival, the Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery, and the Festival of New American Music, the Roulette Concert Space. His music has been performed to critical acclaim throughout Asia, Australia, Europe, and the United States by many distinguished performers, ensembles and, concert series including: Vicki Ray, Susan Ung, Joseph Wytko, the California E.A.R. Unit, Topology, the Los Angeles Percussion Quartet, the Auras Group for New Music, the Eclipse Quartet, Ensemble Green, the New York Miniatattist Ensemble, Interpretations, Piano Spheres, Hear Now, the Focus Festival at Juilliard, and the Thailand International Composition Festival.
