Dear Norman:

My grateful thanks for your kind comment dictated over the telephone from the depths of Arizona. My apologies for disturbing your well deserved rest there. Enclosed a copy of the letter you sent me upon receipt of the earlier version of the same book. I would be most grateful if you would allow us to use the opening paragraph, changing the title of course to its current status of Facing The Music. I am asking Dan Catlin, my editor at David McKay in New York, to phone you next Friday as our deadline is rapidly approaching.

I am thrilled and flattered that you like my book.

Wishing you and Ellen a Happy New Year,

Yours ever,

Henri Temianka
