Mr. Henry Temianka is known to me since 1926, when I accepted him as a pupil at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, where I was head of the violin department. He stayed in America till about 1930, at which time he startedd concertising in Europe with great success. I consider him as a firstclass violinist and as a man of irreproachable character. At the present time he is leader of the Scottish Orchestra in Glasgow.
