Welcome

Dear Friends,

Welcome to this concert of the Chapman Chamber Orchestra. Chapman University Conservatory of Music is one of only three institutions in the country along with The Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and the Mannes School in New York that offers an undergraduate conducting degree. Chapman’s conducting graduates have recently been accepted into such prestigious programs as Cincinnati University’s College Conservatory of Music and USC. Candidates have also attended such summer programs as the Conductors Retreat in Medomak, Maine, the Canford School in Great Britain and Bard College in New York.

Thank you for attending today’s concert and for supporting these talented young professionals.

Musically yours,

Daniel Alfred Wachs
Music Director, Chapman Chamber Orchestra
Director of Instrumental Studies, Chapman University Conservatory of Music

Johannes Brahms (1833-1897)

Tragic Overture

Brahms composed this work on holiday during the summer of 1880 and the first performance was led by Hans Richter with the Vienna Philharmonic on December 26th of that year. The Tragic Overture can be seen as a free standing symphonic work. Although the work is titled “Tragic Overture,” Brahms did not give any hint of a specific “tragedy,” nor had he suffered any recent private loss or given any indication of uncommon sadness. He actually was not fond of the title and at one point he referred to the work as the “Dramatic Overture.”

The Tragic Overture encompasses a basic sonata form that has been expanded to include three main subjects. The first is vigorous and muscular, full of punchy dotted phrases with much of its strength coming from active involvement within the orchestra. The second subject arrives, announced by the melancholic oboe, and moments later we are given rising horn calls that preface the third subject. These horn calls seamlessly lead us to the climax which to the ear sounds like a recapitulation. However, what we arrive to is a development section. This development is brief, however, after which the three subjects are recapitulated in reverse order.

Maurice Ravel (1875-1937)

Le Tombeau de Couperin

Maurice Ravel was born in 1875 in the south of France. Being very supportive of young Maurice's talent, his parents sent him to the Paris Conservatory. Ravel was not recognized for his academic achievements as he was, often times, known to be often times too radical and heedless. He joined a group of "outcast artists," which included fellow composers like Stravinsky and De Falla, where his most impressionistic and revolutionary works were debuted. Ravel also befriended Debussy, which proved to be both a blessing and a curse as debates as to "who first influenced the other" flared between critics and fellow artists.

Initially planned before WWII, Ravel completed a solo piano piece “French suite” using 18th century sensibilities as an homage to his musical predecessors in 1917. Le Tombeau de Couperin also became a tribute, as each movement is dedicated to friends that died in the war. In 1919, Ravel orchestrated four movements from the piano suite. Two of the more unfamiliar movements, the Forlane and Rigaudon find their origins in the 17th century. The Forlane, a courtship dance, can trace its history to Italy, and the Rigaudon, a lively dance, to the south of France.

Ludwig Van Beethoven (1770-1827)

Symphony No. 5 in C Minor, Op. 67

Perhaps his most recognizable work, Ludwig van Beethoven composed his Symphony No. 5 in C minor, Op. 67, between the years of 1804-1808. It is known that the time of the creation of the Fifth Symphony was one of intense activity for Beethoven. While he was distracted by the completion of several of his other works, Beethoven also revised and rewrote drafts to the Fifth for countless hours. The work was finally premiered on December 22, 1808 at a large concert consisting entirely of Beethoven premieres, including his Sixth Symphony, Fourth Piano Concerto, and the Choral Fantasy. The concert took place in Vienna at the Theater an der Wien, was directed by Beethoven himself, and lasted over four hours long.

The symphony is comprised of four movements: an opening sonata, an andante, and a fast scherzo, which leads ataeca to the finale. The Allegro con Brio first movement begins with the famous four-note motif, and following the first four bars Beethoven uses imitations and sequences to expand the theme. This leads to the Development continuing to use the same musical elements as well as frequent modulation. Beethoven then brings us to the Recapitulation and ends the movement with an exaggerated coda. The lyrical second movement, Andante con moto, begins in A flat Major. This movement is in a double variation form, where two themes are presented and varied in alternation.

The Scherzo Allegro third movement is in ternary form, consisting of a scherzo and trio. It follows the traditional opening sonata, scherzo, and trio form. The triumphant and exhilarating finale begins without interruption after the scherzo. The Fifth Symphony finale includes a very long coda, in which the main themes of the movement are played in a temporarily compressed form. Towards the end the tempo is increased to presto. The symphony ends with 29 bars of C major chords, played fortissimo.

about the Chamber Orchestra

Under the direction of Music Director Daniel Alfred Watts, the Chapman University Symphony Orchestra and Chamber Orchestras have received wide recognition for their outstanding performances and are considered to be among the finest university ensembles on the West Coast. The Chapman Orchestras received national recognition when they were presented the coveted ASCAP (American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers) award at the American Symphony Orchestra League Annual Conference for their performances of music by American composers. In the fall of 2009, a live recording of Milhaud’s La Creation du Monde was selected by the world famous Phillips Collection in Washington, D.C. to accompany its exhibit, "Man Ray, African Art and the Modernist Lens." In frequent demand for performances, the orchestras have performed at the Music Educators National, Divisional, State, and Southern Section Conferences and the Chamber Orchestras has been the featured performing ensemble for the CMEA (California Music Educators Association) Southern Section Conference. In February of 2008, the Chapman Chamber Orchestra joined forces with Orange County’s Pacific Symphony as part of the Eighth American Composers Festival. The Chamber Orchestra has toured extensively on the West Coast of the United States and has performed on international tours in Europe, China, Hong Kong, and Japan.

About the Conductors

ARMAN KEYVANIAN, conductor
While still a student, Arman Keyvanian has already made great strides in establishing a career in both the artistic and business aspects of the performing arts. Mr. Keyvanian began his studies at the age of four as a pianist. In 2004, he debuted with the Glendale Symphony Orchestra as the soloist for a Mozart Piano Concerto and since then has enjoyed several performances with the Glendale Symphony Orchestra. The Glendale News Press reviewed his debut performance stating, "Keyvanian played Mozart’s Piano Concerto No. 21 in C with a passion and delivery well beyond his years." Aside from strict artistic work, Mr. Keyvanian’s was appointed to the City of Glendale Arts and Culture Commission in 2005. His appointment has allowed him to dedicate time and energy to civic efforts and improving business for fellow artists. Mr. Keyvanian is currently serving his second consecutive term as Chair of the Arts and Culture Commission.

AUSTEN STRANAHAN, conductor
Austen Stranahan is a Conducting and Vocal Performance major at Chapman University. While at Chapman, he has performed with and conducted multiple university ensembles. Austen was a member of the touring University Choir and University Singers for four years, having conducted the University Singers in a concert last spring, as well as performing in Opera Chapman for two years. While at Chapman, Austen has studied choral conducting with Dr. Joseph Modica and Dr. Stephen Coker, while studying instrumental conducting with Daniel Alfred Wachs, as well as participating in master classes and conducting workshops with Vance George, Rudolfo Saglimbeni and George Hurst. He hopes to continue his conducting studies at the graduate level in the near future.

KALENA BOVELL, conductor
Violinist and conductor Kalena Bovell was born in Los Angeles and has been involved with music for over a decade. Kalena began playing the violin at the age of eleven and currently studies with William Fitzpatrick. She has performed with numerous orchestras including the South East Symphony Association and the Angeles String Players. Due to her dedication to community excellence, she is also currently the string coach and administrative assistant for the Prelude Youth Orchestras for their 2010-2011 season. Kalena’s interest in conducting became evident after taking an introductory conducting course in 2006. Since beginning her studies under conductor Daniel Alfred Wachs, her interest has evolved into an undeniable passion. Kalena has worked with conductors such as Michael Morgan and recently with Kenneth Kiesler at the Conductors’ Retreat in Medomak. Moreover, Kalena is the Assistant Conductor to the Orange County Youth Symphony Orchestra for their 2010-2011 season under Daniel Alfred Wachs. As a recent graduate of Chapman University’s Conservatory of Music, Kalena will be continuing her studies at the graduate level by pursuing a master's degree in Conducting.
