My dear Yehudi:

I treasure your two-page letter just received, with its fascinating comments referring to the violinist-composers. How refreshing to find that the art of letter writing is not dead, after all! And how good of you to take the time to share your thoughts with me. It is ample reward for having written the article.

It looks as if I shall not be in Europe until the autumn. I shall be giving a master class at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia early in April, and conduct the string orchestra there, and shall be in New York for concerts in the area. If you expect to be in the US at that time, I would love to know.

With many affectionate thoughts,

Yours ever,

Henri
