Dear Henry -

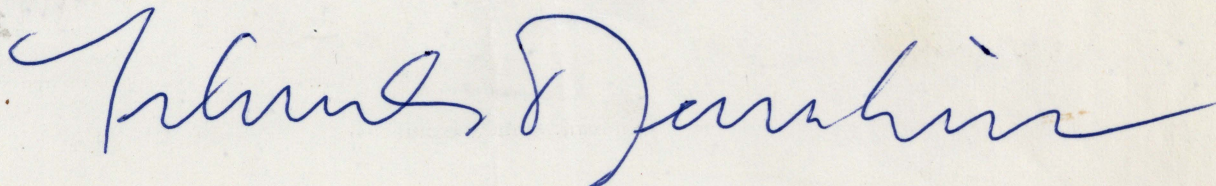

I loved your letter and can think of no more happy prospect than making music with you and your "band" - I shall take this matter up with Columbia Concerts in connection with my next tour, presumably in Autumn 1965.

I heard a young boy in Los Angeles by the name of Endre Balogh, with whom I was most impressed, and his parents are very eager to send him to my school in London. I was wondering whether among the good people who were the guests at the supper party the other day there would be any who would consider underwriting this boy's trip and the cost of his schooling in London, which amounts to £450 a year. What would you advise?

It may seem rather far-fetched to send a boy 6,000 miles away when there are so many wonderful musicians in Los Angeles, and as you know I would be the last one to query this fact, but the parents seem determined, and the boy is most talented and I suppose there is some justification in a change of climate, even if it is for the worse!

Diana joins in love to you both and to your two splendid boys,

Devotedly -

Yehudi Menuhin
