Dearest Emmy and Henri:

Now that was a reunion! You must have seen how happy I was every minute of your visit. Our "exile" has so few high moments, that we treasure each of them -- and this was the greatest.

I have always maintained that Henri is not only one of the most erudite of musicians, one of the most talented, and certainly the very cleverest one of all. Now the tape reassures me on all points. That must have been a sensational concert as well as a Temiankian novelty. How I admire you.

I am still limping a bout, with the questionable joy of gout added to my disability. But we're going on the trip to Egypt and Israel none-the-less. Marc will do the sightseeing (which I've already had before) and I'll read some good books when I can't walk comfortably. I'm damned if I'm going to give up!!!

Retournez a Del Mar encore. We won't forget the baguette next time, Emmy.

Much love to you both,

Racella
