Dearest Emmy:

The radio brought the devastating news to San Diego. I am weeping for the loss of a man I have held most dear for several decades...a friend in the true sense of the word.

How you will miss him. His sparkling conversation, his inimitable personality, not to mention his enormous talent, must have made him a wonderful and interesting companion for you through all the years of your marriage. I sympathize deeply with you and your family.

November is a dreadful month for me: my husband died three years ago in November; a year ago on the 10th I lost my oldest son overnight from a brain hemorrhage. My terrible automobile accident two years ago was on the anniversary of Marc's death. Now Henri.

I know you will grieve; but I also know you will manage. You were a courageous helpmate to Henri in his career and in his life. I know you will be strong in the face of his death.

I send you love - and condolences.

Devotedly,

Marcella
