Dear Mr. Rohner:

I was rather surprised to receive a check for only fifty dollars for my article in the current September issue of the Instrumentalist. I realize that our agreement for a one-hundred dollar honorarium per article is tied to the length of the article, but the current article is not merely a matter of words, it is most lavishly illustrated. This has been an enormously time consuming article, and I estimate that my secretarial expenses incurred could easily equal fifty dollars. This is rather discouraging.

I am preparing several articles on music education in Scandinavia, based on my recent experiences there. You may find the enclosed material of interest.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

Henri Temianka
