Dear Sirs:

I thought you should know that some of the material in a book published by your Company has been plagiarized: the book is "Facing the Music", by Henri Temianka; and the plagiarism is contained in ~~the~~ an article by an Edwin Ross, which has just been published in a local magazine called Forecast! - its October 1976 issue. A copy of the article by Ross is enclosed, so that you can compare his article with ^{of Temianka's book,} pages 172-182, from which the material has been lifted practically word for word. ~~It~~

The address of the magazine, again for your convenience in taking whatever steps your company might think necessary, is:

II

Forecast FM, Inc.,
8615 Ramsey Ave.,
Silver Spring, Maryland 20910

I'm bringing this to your attention because I think that such direct stealing of material shouldn't go undealt with. I'd appreciate it if you would acknowledge getting this letter - and also, would be interested in knowing about any steps your company ^{decide to} would take in the matter.

Sincerely,

Sidney O. Castner
