Dear Mr Tennant,

I am sorry if I gave the impression that I didn't remember you at the Albert Hall last Wednesday - that was certainly not the case! What I could not quite remember, & those laugh moments just before the concert was about to start, was the particular subject of our recent correspondence. If you had come back after the concert as you said you would, I am sure I would have done, & we might have discussed any points arising from it.

However - my sincerest apologies!

I return Dmitri P's letter to you -

What an interesting one, & how exactly he expresses what he wants in his music.

He is a very great composer & it is a wonderful symphony.

With every kind of love

Yours sincerely
Henry Dutton
