Dear Mr. Temianka:

It is no news to you that your story about Carel Blitz, "The Most Unforgettable Character I've Met," was read by the largest magazine audience in the United States. But I know you will be gratified to learn that, in addition, this excellent piece was reprint in twelve of our International Editions. Thus you have reached millions of other readers in many lands.

The selection of your article for this wider distribution was a tribute to both the fundamental and the general interest of its appeal. A number of our articles are used in few or none of our foreign editions because their flavor and factual content are of special appeal to our United States audience.

So that you may have permanent proof of how many friends you have made in other countries, we are sending you copies of the International Editions in which your story appeared.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]
