Program Notes

Having been interested in Mahayana Buddhism for a number of years, I went to a Buddhist monastery in upstate New York to study meditation in 1999. One evening, while walking alone by the side of the lake, I caught the sight of a “V” shape floating and extending on the surface of the water. It was a beaver taking a swim under the moon. This image gave me insight into my relationship with silence: underneath the music I write is a profoundly deep silence upon which I seek to inscribe my signature through sound. It inspired me to compose a number of works.

Lakescape was commissioned by the SoundSCAPE Festival and written for Tony Arnold, Aiyun Huang and Thomas Rosenkranz who gave its world premiere on July 11, 2012 at Auditorium Città di Maccagno, in Maccagno, Italy.

LA{f(0)} - Part of experimentation in composing involves looking for sources of interest and inspiration outside of emotions and feelings. This piece has no formal title, and is instead titled after the Laplace transform, a mathematical model which was the inspiration for the piece. Wikipedia gives the following explanation for the Laplace transform: “In mathematics the Laplace operator or Laplacian is a differential operator given by the divergence of the gradient of a function on Euclidean space”. Essentially, what this function describes is harmonic oscillation when applied to sound; or in other words, the intense vibrations ones hears between two pitches that are extremely close together; this is caused by the different frequencies of each note phasing intensely against each other in space.

～Scott Stedman

This piece utilizes the numbers 3, 4, 7, and 8 and experiments with their application to form, intervallic relationships, rhythm, meter, and relation to one another. Each subsequent variation relates to the theme and the previous variation in abstract as well as simple ways. Timbre, rhythm, and use of significant numbers were primary focuses in this piece.

～Michael Fleming

Hollow Elegies for Flute, Viola, Guitar, and Marimba (2014) was written for guitarist Mason Hock and is structured in two movements, I. Zosarn, A Dream of Cowardice, and II. Id, A Dream of Rewards. The first movement is a compositional response to a dream the composer had after writing the Viola Concerto (2013). In the dream, a towering conductor, Zosarn, chastised the composer for the use of quarter tonality, disregarding it as an absurd harmonic language. Thus, the first movement contains three different types of microtonality: viola quarter tones, reminiscent of the Viola Concerto, sixth tones in the guitar (performed by slightly detuning two strings) and flute glissandi. A slow six note melodic idea, introduced most prominently in the guitar, makes up the structure of the work as well as the pitches which the performers surround in a harshly dissonant, tense sound world. The second movement is more directly programmatic, as furious, loud passages of the “Id” result in soft, pleasant heterophony. The two ideas battle for control as the violent outbursts of the Id seek the pleasurable, diminishing reward of melody.

～Matthew Owensby

Virion - The entire piece is written as a cello sonata in a non-traditional form, with the cello and piano alternating solos throughout four divisions of the piece which stand more as markers than movements. The first, second, and third sections are contrasting in character and convey the emotions I was feeling, while the fourth is somewhat hopeful and less downtrodden than the previous three, but still maintains some semblance of the mood of the rest of the piece. It’s worth noting that this piece was written throughout the process of therapy, so every movement was written as I was feeling the particular emotion it conveys. The title itself is a reference to the fever/flu/satan devil sickness that made my junior year finals week just that much more enjoyable.

～Scott Stedman

Gobi Gloria belongs to a series of compositions that grew out of my admiration for Mongolian music. The series include Feng (for solo violin, written for Feng Hew), Gobi Polyphony (for erhu and cello, written for Xu Ke), Gobi Canticle (for violin and cello, written for Masuko Ushioda and Laurence Lesser), and Serashi Fragments (written for the Arditti Quartet).

The melody is played against its own inversion, retrograde and retrograde-inversion in an otherwise mostly heterophonic texture. The piece alludes to various genres of Mongolian music that include the long-chant, as well as the music of dance and shaman rituals. It concludes with a rendering of a folk song that I heard during my visit to Nei Monggol region in 1996.

Gobi Gloria was commissioned by and dedicated to the Ying Quartet who gave its world premiere at the University Hall at Harvard University on March 15, 2007.

With Nothing Diverting To Do - The title of this piece was inspired by David Foster Wallace’s novel The Pale King that went unfinished due to his tragic suicide in 2008. The book discusses how the information age has either created or simply provided the tools to fill a need for constant distraction. Every person walks around with a cellphone, Ipod, or other similar device that is a con- sistent source of numbing distraction. The Internet provides immediate access to the voic- es of billions and Muzak or television provide a persistent, steady soundtrack to our lives. This combines to provide enough stimulation to distract us from loneliness, and the omi- nous, almost ambient pain that characterizes those brief moments when everything around us is quiet and we are without distraction. When we are alone. “This terror of silence with nothing diverting to do.”

Dear Alumni, Parents and Friends:

Last year we welcomed over 11,000 audience members to our performances, concerts, recitals and events, making it our best attended year ever. In addition to our student performances, our season always includes choreography, direction and concerts by our stellar faculty and visiting artists who are accomplished professionals, each with a true passion for the arts.

As a lover of the arts, you have a crucial role to play to ensure our success and the success of the students who are at the heart of all we do. It is my hope that you will help provide our students with the tools and resources they need with your gift to the Fund for Excellence.

A gift to the Fund directly supports these College priorities:

- Production costs for the 200-plus live performances of dance, music, theatre and opera the College produces each year;
- Recruitment of professional visiting artists for technique and master classes;
- Scholarships and travel funds for our student touring ensembles and conferences.

Performances like the one you are about to see are an important part of our students’ academic and artistic curriculum, exposing them to experiences that hone their artistic sensibilities. Our students graduate with more training, more experience and more professional opportunities to launch their careers in the performing arts and performing arts education.

Each one of our students will benefit from your decision to support the College. With your gift, you will be a part of a family of individuals who demonstrate, year after year, their commitment to developing the talents of young artists. I hope you join us not only because you value the arts, but because you want to invest in our next generation of artists.

Enjoy the performance, and I look forward to seeing you again at our performances throughout the year.

Sincerely,

Dale A. Merrill, Dean

Invest in our next generation of artists.

The College of Performing Arts brings you the most vital and powerful part of our curriculum – live performances of dance, music and theatre. This extraordinary hands-on training for our next generation of artists is possible only through your generosity.

By helping to maintain the resources essential to our curriculum, you allow the College to offer a dynamic learning environment that nurtures the creativity of our students with one-on-one training, ensuring they master their craft. We can produce exceptional performances like what you are about to see only with support from people committed to excellence in performing arts. People just like you.

Help support the College of Performing Arts’ talented young students as they transform into tomorrow’s professional artists. To learn more about giving to the College of Performing Arts, please contact Liz Crozer, Director of Development, at (714) 289-2085 or crozer@chapman.edu.
